PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, STATISTICS.

The Presbyterians, who are found chiefly in Ulster, are formed into Congregations, each of which is under the ecclesiastical government of a court called a Kirk Session, consisting of the Minister and Elders of the Congregation. An indefinite number of the Ministers of these Congregations, with a representative Elder for each, constitutes a Presbytery, which has the charge of the Congregations represented in it. Delegates from each of these Presbyteries, consisting of all the Ministers, with representative Elder for each, constitute the General Assembly, which is presided over by a Moderator chosen annually, and regulates the Ecclesiastical concerns of the Body. The first Presbytery in Ireland was formed at Carrickfergus in 1642, and gave rise to the Synod of Ulster. The Presbyterian Synod of Munster was formed about 1660. The Presbytery of Antrim separated from the Synod of Ulster in 1727, and the Remonstrant Synod in 1829. A number of Seceders formed themselves into the Secession Synod of Ireland about 1780. In 1840 the General and Secession Synods having united, assumed the name of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland, comprising in 1923, 559 Congregations, arranged under 36 Presbyteries. The Ministers are supported by voluntary contributions, the rents of seats or pews, and the proceeds of the commutation of the annual Parliamentary grant called the Regium Donum, or Royal Gift (first granted in 1672 by Charles II.), made by the Church Temporalities Commissioners under the Act of 1869, consisting, for all Presbyterian bodies, of—Commutation Money, including Bonus, £622,741; Widows' Fund and Clerks of Synod, and the General Assembly's Theological College at Belfast, £90,088; total capital payments, £712,829, exclusive of £58,436 paid to ministers previous to the date of the commutation of their annuities. The Minutes of the General Assembly for 1924 state that in the nine months ending in December, there were 609 ministers (besides 45 licentiates and ordained ministers without charge, 558 congregations, and 510 manse). The seat rents produced £90,638; the stipends paid to ministers, £90,200; raised for building or repairing churches, manse, and schools, and payment of debt, £48,159; Sabbath Collections, £54,353; mission collections, £41,961; and other charitable collections, £61,471. Raised for Sustentation Fund, £32,292. The Congregational Debt was £56,442. In 1871, an Act (34 Vict., c. 24), was passed for regulating the management by the Trustees of the Presbyterian Church of certain trust properties for the said Church, and for other purposes. Amended by the Irish Presbyterian Church Act, 1901 (Edward VII., c. 53, Private Act).
